Vocalstyle Rolls can also be used as instrumental rolls, and many of them as dance rolls. The music is in brilliant hand-played arrangement. The prices are as low as those asked for good instrumental rolls.

Ruins Will Suggest Sanguinary Struggle After the War is Over

Scarcely a Spot Will Be Seen by Travelers Where War is Not Felt.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29.—When Europe, at peace once more, invites the American traveler to its shores one of the few spots whose ruins will not suggest the sanguinary struggle which has brought sorrow and desolation to practically all that war-ridden continent is little-known Sardinia, the subject of a communication from Helen Dunstan Wright to the National Geographic Society. A part of the writer's descriptive article has been issued by the society as a geography bulletin which says:

"Those who have taken the Mediterranean route have at least had a glimpse of Sardinia, from their steamer a day out of Naples. The island is in sight for some hours, and, if the steamer passes sufficiently close, a bold, rocky coast can be seen on which Roman outlook towers remain visible to the shore of Spain. The tourist seldom includes a trip to Sardinia in his travels, as neither of his advisers, Thomas Cook nor Baedeker, recommends it to him. It, however, is one of the few foreign fields that has not been overrun and overtaken by the tourist, and in many of the villages a traveler is still regarded as a guest and not as a prey to be pounced upon."

Will Go Around Island.
"Some day, when tourists are freed of taking the tours laid out for them by the guide books, perhaps they will break away from the continent and set sail for Sardinia, especially if they are not traveling just to enjoy hotel comforts. One can rent a good automobile at Cagliari and a week spent touring around the island would probably leave the pleasantest of recollections and an experience long to be remembered."

"Sardinia can be reached by an eight hours' night voyage from Civitavecchia, the port of Rome, to the north end of the island. The crossing is quite comfortable. The beauty of the sunrise over the sheer cliffs and the craggy isolated rocks of Golfo degli Aranci compensates for getting up at five in the morning."

"As soon as one lands, a refreshing fragrance in the air is noticed—a perfume characteristic of Sardinia—not due, certainly to orange trees, as suggested by the name of the port, there

HENDERSON MAN PRAISES TANLAC

Gained Thirty Pounds after Taking One Bottle of Tanlac.
Thinks Its Fine Medicine.

"I was all run down in general and was unable to eat scarcely anything without suffering terribly, had bad taste in my mouth and was light headed and dizzy, felt as though I would drop over most any time," said Mr. I. Frost, of Henderson, W. Va., and in telling of his relief after taking Tanlac he said:

"I was getting weak from lack of eating and losing flesh every day. I purchased a bottle of Tanlac from the Robinson Drug Co., Point Pleasant, W. Va., and before taking one-half of the first bottle I began to see a wonderful improvement, began to gain in flesh, had a terrific appetite, began to sleep well and felt better in every way. I am now taking my second bottle and have gained about thirty pounds. I think this a wonderful medicine for it has done more for me than the doctors could do as I had tried several doctors, but could not get anything to do me any good. I can cheerfully recommend Tanlac to any person in a run down condition such as I was." Signed, J. Frost.

What better results could you wish for? Thousands have made statements similar to this and surely you can very wisely take the advice of these people who have given this new medicine, Tanlac, a trial. Get a bottle today at Farrell's drug store.—Advertisement.

being none in this district, but to the many wild herbs and shrubs all over the island.
"Except for the eucalyptus and pine planted near the stations, there is a noticeable lack of trees along the railway routes. Among the mountains, however, which occupy the eastern half of the island and occur to some extent along the western coast, there are important forests of oak, ilex, cork and wild olive. In the mountainous areas of the island are many fertile valleys."

Fine Horses Bred.

"The town of Macomer is the center of a region where many fine horses are bred for the Italian army, as are also the small ponies used in Naples. Cagliari, at the southern end of the island, is the principal seaport of Sardinia, and is often visited for a few hours by tourists taking the weekly steamer from Genoa and Livorno to Tunis. The bay of Cagliari is most impressive. On the right and left as you enter are hills, with mountains in the distance, while rising up from the lowlands directly opposite the entrance is the city, on a rocky hill 400 feet high. The top of this hill is encircled by a massive wall, built by the Pisans in the thirteenth century. At two of the angles rise the towers of the Lion and the Elephant, but of the tower of the Eagle, which completed the triangle, only the base remains. In the center of these fortifications in the old town. On the slopes of the hill outside the walls is built the modern city of 53,000 inhabitants, the largest in Sardinia. The entire population of the island is estimated at 736,000, a density of population of eighty-five per square mile; that is a much lower figure than in any other part of Italy."

"Among the objects historically interesting in Cagliari are the rock-cut tombs on the hillside below the Castello. These are probably of the same period as the nuraghi, the famous prehistoric truncated cones, thirty feet in diameter at the base and built by the men of the Bronze Age."

"The 'nuraghi' were undoubtedly fortified habitations. They are usually situated in commanding positions at the entrance to tablelands, near the fords of rivers, or on almost inaccessible mountain peaks and within signaling distance of one another. Traces of at least 5,000 of these remains have been found."

"The ancient tombs of the inhabitants of the 'nuraghi' are usually found near them. These are called the 'tombs of the giants' and are three and one-half feet wide and from thirty to forty feet long, with a roof of flat slabs or rocks and with the sides made of the slabs or of rough walling. The bodies were probably arranged in a sitting position. In front of the tombs are circles about forty feet in diameter, surrounded by stones; these were, no doubt, used for sacrifices and burial rites."

Where Real Sardis Live.
"To get an insight into the life of the inhabitants of this isolated island, one should visit its villages. It is in the entire eastern half, with its mountainous valleys and villages, where the real Sardis now live. Here one will find them good looking and in good health, generous, hospitable, honorable and quite poor. Politeness is carried almost to an extreme. Often as one rides through the small villages the women, children and the old men sitting at the doorsteps rise and wish up a 'buon viaggio'; or if it happens to be noon, some may wish you a
